

Study in Luton

Bedfordshire College is located in an economical part of UK and good quality accommodation at affordable prices.

The strength in this personalized, independent approach will help you to develop the problem-solving skills you will need in the real world.

English language skills are also a key. English is spoken by about twenty per cent of the world's population, and is an official language in more than seventy countries. It is the common working language in international business, science, information technology, diplomacy, computer programming, air traffic control, pop music, and the internet.

When you study in the UK, you'll be living and learning English, using the language every day in a variety of situations. Your level of competence and confidence in written and spoken English will improve.

For students who need to boost their IELTS grade to enter our graduate and postgraduate programmes Guildhall offers English support classes, given by dedicated, experienced and qualified native speakers.
